Bis seven-years' work.

In his sermon Sunday morning Dr. Cooper presented to his hearers a summary of the marked improvements that had been made in his church during the seven years of his stewardship. There had, he said, been 112 deaths in all during this time, and among these were many old and prominent citizens. He had in this same period officiated at 253 tunerals, married 102 counles, had received 497 members and baptized 271 of this number; had never missed but 3 services from sickness, and had made 7,000 pastoral visits. The collections through the treasurer, Dr. Cooper asserted, had amounted to $115,000, and from all sources to about $175,000, in closing Dr. Cooper gracefully acknowledged the invaluable assistance he had received from every officer and member of the church and the Sabbath-school, choir, and all committees.
